To the Right Honourable

EARL COWPER.

My LORD,

A cquaintance and Conversation, and the Pleasure I have sometimes had of sharing in your private Hours and Retirement from the Town, were a Happiness sufficient of itself to require from me the utmost Returns of Gratitude. But your Lordship was soon pleas'd to add to this, your generous Care of A 2 providing providing for One who had given you no Sollicitation; and before I could alk, or even expected it, to honour me with an Employment which, tho' valuable on other Accounts, became most so to me by the single Circumstance of its placing me near your Lordship. But I am not to bound my Acknowledgments here: When your Lordship withdrew from Publick Business, your Care of me did not cease, 'till you had recommended me to your Successor, the present Lord Chancellor. So that my having fince had the Felicity to be continued in the same Employment under a Patron to whom I have many Obligations, and who has particularly shewn a Pleasure in encouraging the Lovers of Learning and Arts, is an additional Obligation, for which I am originally indebted to your Lordship.

And yet I have said Nothing as I ought of your Lordship's Favours, unless I cou'd describe a Thousand agreeable Circumstances which attend and heighten them. To Give is an Act of Power common to the Great, but to double any Gift by the Manner of bestowing it, is an Art known only to the most elegant Minds, and a Pleasure tasted by none but Persons of the most refin'd Humanity.

As for the Tragedy I now humbly dedicate to your Lordship, Part of it was written in the Neighbourhood of your Lordship's pleafant Seat in the Country; where it had the good Fortune to grow up under your early Approbation and Encouragement: and I perfuade myself it will now be receiv'd by your Lordship with that Indulgence, the Exercise of which is natural to you, and is not the least of those distinguishing Virtues by which you have gain'd an unfought Popularity, and without either Study or Defign, have made yourfelf one of the most beloved Perfons of the Age in which you live. Here. my Lord, I have a large Subject before me, if I were capable of pursuing it, and if I were not acquainted with your Lordship's particular Delicacy, by which you are not more careful to deserve the greatest Praifes than you are nice in receiving even the leaft. I shall therefore only presume to add, that I am, with greatest Zeal,

My LORD,

Your Lordship's most Oblig'd,

Most Dutiful and

Devoted Humble Servant,

JOHN HUGHES.

To the Memory of Mr. HUGHES.

O Lost too Early! and too Lately known!

My Love's intended Marks receive in one;

Where new to Ease, and recent from thy Pains,

With ampler Joy thou tread'st the blissful Plains:

If there regardful of the Ways of Men,

Thou seest with Pity, what thou once hast been,

O gentle Shade! accept this humble Verse,

Amidi the meaner Honours of thy Herse.

How does thy Phocyas warm Britannia's Youth!
In Arms to Glory, and in Love to Truth!
O! if the Muse of Future ought presage,
These Seeds shall ripen in the coming Age;
Then Touth's renown'd for many a Field well fought,
Shall own the glorious Lessons thou hast taught;
Honour's strict Laws shall reign in every Mind,
And every Phocyas his Eudocia sind.
O! yet be this the lowest of thy Fame,
To form the Hero, and instruct the Dame;
I see the Christian Friend, Relation, Son,
Burn for the glorious Course that thou hast run.

If ought we owe thy Peneil, or thy Lyre,
Of manly Strokes, or of superior Fire,
How must thy Muse be ever own'd Divine,
And in the sucred List unrival'd spine!
Not joyous Health was thine, nor downy Ease,
To thee forbidden was the soft Recess;
Worn with Disease, and never ceasing Pain,
How sirmly did thy Soul her Seat maintain!
Early thy Side the mortal Shaft receiv'd:
All, but the wounded Hero, saw and griev'd:
No Sense of Smart, no Anguish cou'd controul,
Or turn the generous Purpose of his Soul.

Witness ye nobler Arts, by Heav'n design'd
To charm the Senses, and improve the Mind;
How thro' your Mazes, with incessant Toil,
He urg'd his Way to reup th' Immortal Spoil!
So Fabled Orpheus tun'd his potent Song,
Death's circling Shades and Stygian Glooms among.

Of thy great Labours this the last and chief,
At once demands our Wonder, and our Grief;
Thy Soul in clouded Majesty 'till now,
Its finish'd Beauties did but partly show,
Wond'ring we saw disclos'd the ample Store,
Griev'd in that Instant, to expect no more.

So in the Evening of some doubtful Day, And Clouds divided with a mingled Ray, Happily the golden Sun unveils his Light, And his whole Glories spreads at once to Sight; Th' enliven'd World look up with gladsome Cheer, Bless the gay Scene, nor heed the Night too near; Sudden, the lucent Orb drops swiftly down Thro' Western Shades, to shine in Worlds unknown.

PROLOGUE.

Spoken by Mr. MILLS.

To raife your Fancies, and engage your Hearts.
When o'er this little Spot she shakes her Wand,
Towns, Cities, Nations, rife at her Command;
And Armies march obedient to her Call,
New States are form'd, and ancient Empires fall.
To wary your Instruction and Delight,
Past Ages roll renew'd before your Sight.
His awful Form the Greek and Roman wears,
Wak'd from his Slumber of Two Thousand Years:
And Man's whole Race, restor'd to Joy and Pain,
Act all their little Greatness o'er again.

No common Woes To-night we set to View; Important is the Time, the Story new. Our opening Scenes shall to your Sight disclose How Spiritual Dragooning sirst arose; Claims drawn from Heav'n by a Barbarian Lord, And Fuith first propagated by the Sword.

PROLOGUE.

In rocky Araby this Pest began,
And swiftly o'er the Neighbour Country ran:
By Faction weaken'd, and Dissurion broke,
Degenerate Provinces admit the Yoke.
Nor stopp'd their Progress, till resistless grown,
Th' Enthusiasts made all Asia's World their own.

Britons be warn'd; let ev'n your Pleasures here Convey some Moral to th' attentive Ear. Beware left Blaffings long poffest displease; Nor grow Supine with Liberty and Ease. Your Country's Glory be your constant Aim, Her Safety all is yours; think yours her Fame. Unite at bome - forego intestine fars, Then forn the Humours of Religious Wars; Speak loud in Thunder from your guarded Shores, And tell the Continent, the Sea is Yours. Speak on, - and fay, by War you'll Peace maintain, Till brightest Years, referv'd for GEORGE's Reign, Advance, and fine in their appointed Round; Arts then Shall flourist, plenteous Joys abound, And, clear'd by him, each Loyal Muse shall sing The happiest Island, and the greatest KING.

ACT I. SCENE I. SCENE The City.

Enter Eumenes, follow'd by a Croud of People.

EUMENES.

I'LL hear no more. Be gone!

Or stop your clamorous Mouths, that still are open. To bawl Sedition, and consume our Corn.

If you will follow me, fend home your Women,
And follow to the Walls; there earn your Safety,
As brave Men shou'd—Pity your Wives and Children?

Yes, I do pity them, Heav'n knows I do,
Ev'n more than You; nor will I yield 'em up,
Tho' at your own Request, a Préy to Russians—

Herbis, what News?

Enter Herbis.

Herb. News?—We're betray'd, deferted;

The Works are but half mann'd; the Saracens

Perceive

Perceive it, and pour on such Crouds, they blunt Our Wespons, and have drain'd our Stores of Death, What will you next?

Eum. I've fent a fresh Recruit?

'The valiant Phocyas leads 'em on—whose Deeds In early Youth affert his noble Race; A more than common Ardor seems to warm His Breast, as if he lov'd and courted Danger.

Herb. I fear 'twill be too late.

Eum. [Afide.] I fear it too: And tho' I brav'd it to the trembling Croud, I've caught th' Infection, and I dread th' Event. Wou'd I had treated—but 'tis now too late.—

Come, Herbis. [Exeunt.

[A Noise is beard without, of Officers giving Orders.
1 Off. Help there, more Help! All to the Eastern Gate!

2 Off. Look where they cling aloft like cluster'd Bees! Here, Archers, ply your Bows.

1 Off. Down with the Ladders; What, will you let them mount?

2 Off Aloft there! give the Signal, you that wait In St. Mark's Tower.

1 Off. Is the Town asleep? Ring out the Alarum Bell!

[Bell rings, and the Citizens run to and fro in Confusion.

A great Shout. Enter Herbis.

Herb. So-the Tide turns; Phocyas, has driv'n it back. The Gate once more is ours.

Enter Eumenes, Phocyas, Artamon, &c.

Eum. Brave Phocyas, Thanks! mine and the People's

Thanks! [People shout, and cry, A Phocyas, &c.

Yet, that we may not lose this breathing Space,

Hang out the Flag of Truce. You, Artamon, Haste with a Trumpet to th' Arabian Chiefs, And let them know, that, Hostages exchang'd, I'd meet them now upon the Eastern Plain.

[Exit Artamon.

Pho. What means Eumenes?

Eum. Phocyas, I wou'd try By friendly Treaty, if on Terms of Peace They'll yet withdraw their Powers.

Pho. On Terms of Peace? What Peace can you expect from Bands of Robbers? What Terms from Slaves, but Slavery ?- You know, These Wretches fight not at the Call of Honour; For injur'd Rights, or Birth, or jealous Greatness, That fets the Princes of the World in Arms. Base-born, and starv'd amidst their stony Desarts, Long have they view'd from far, with wishing Eyes, Our fruitful Vales; our Fig-Trees, Olives, Vines, Our Cedars, Palms, and all the verdant Wealth That crowns fair Lebanon's aspiring Brows. Here have the Locusts pitch'd, nor will they leave These tasted Sweets, these blooming Fields of Plenty, For barren Sands, and native Poverty,

'Till driv'n away by Force.

Eum. What can we do? Our People in Despair, our Soldiers haras'd With daily Toil, and constant nightly Watch; Our Hope of Succours from the Emperor Uncertain; Eutyches not yet return'd, That went to atk them; one brave Army beaten; Th' Arabians numerous, cruel, flush'd with Conquest.

Herb. Besides, you know what Frenzy fires their Minds

Of their new Faith, and drives 'em on to Danger. Eum. True ;-they pretend the Gates of Paradise Stand ever open to receive the Souls

Of All that die in fighting for their Cause.

Pho. Then wou'd I fend their Souls to Paradife, And give their Bodies to our Syrian Eagles. Our Ebb of Fortune is not yet fo low To leave us desperate. Aids may soon arrive; Mean time, in Spight of their late bold Attack, The City still is ours; their Force repell'd, And therefore weaker; proud of this Success, Our Soldiers too have gain'd redoubled Courage, And long to meet them on the open Plain.

What hinders then but we repay this Outrage, And fally on their Camp?

Eum. No——let us first
Believe th' Occasion fair, by this Advantage,
To purchase their Retreat on easy Terms:
That failing, we the better stand acquitted
To our own Citizens. Howe'er, brave Phocyas,
Cherish this Ardor in the Soldiery,
And in our Absence form what Force thou canst.
Then, if these hungry Blood-Hounds of the War
Shou'd still be deaf to Peace, at our Return,
Our widen'd Gates shall pour a sudden Flood
Of Vengeance on them, and chastise their Scorn. [Exeunt.

SCENE changes to a Plain before the City.

A Prospect of Tents at a Distance.

Caled, Abudah, Daran.

Dar. To treat, my Chiefs?—What! are we Merchants then.

That only come to traffick with these Syrians,
And poorly cheapen Conquest on Conditions?
No; we were sent to fight the Caliph's Battles,
'Till ev'ry Iron Neck bend to Obedience.
Another Storm makes this proud City ours;
What need to treat?—I am for War and Plunder.

Cal. Why so am I—and but to save the Lives Of Mussulmans, not Christians, wou'd not treat. I hate these Christian Dogs; and 'tis our Task, As thou observ'st, to sight; our Law enjoyns it. Heav'n too is promis'd only to the Valiant. Our Prophet us'd to say, the happy Plains Above, lye stretch'd beneath the Blaze of Swords.

Abu. Yet Daran's loth to trust that Heav'n for Pay: This Earth, it seems, has Gifts that please him more.

Cal. Check not his Zeal, Abudah.

Abu. No; I praise it.

Zet I cou'd wish that Zeal h

Yet I cou'd wish that Zeal had better Motives. Has Victory no Fruits but Blood and Plunder? That we were sent to fight, 'tis true; but wherefore?

For

For Conquest, not Destruction. That obtain'd, The more we spare, the Caliph has more Subjects, And Heav'n is better serv'd.—But see, they come.

Enter Eumenes, Herbis, Artamon.

Cal. Well, Christians, we are met—and War a while,

At your Request, has still'd its angry Voice,

To hear what you'll propose.

Eum. We come to know,

After so many Troops you've lost in vain, If you'll draw off in Peace, and save the rest.

Herb. Or rather to know first—for yet we know not— Why on your Heads you call our pointed Arrows, In our own just Defence? What means this Visit? And why we see so many thousand Tents Rise in the Air, and whiten all our Fields?

Cal. Is that a Question now?—you had our Summons, When first we march'd against you, to surrender. Two Moons have wasted since, and now the third Is in its Wane. 'Tis true, drawn off a while, At Aiznadin we met and sought the Powers Sent by your Emperor to raise our Siege. Vainly you thought us gone; we gain'd a Conquest. You see we are return'd; our Hearts, our Cause, Our Swords the same.

Herb. But why those Swords were drawn, And what's that Cause, inform us?

Eum. Speak your Wrongs,

If Wrongs you have receiv'd, and by what Means They may be now repair'd?

Abu. Then, Christians, hear!

And Heav'n inspire you to embrace its Truth!

Not Wrongs t'avenge, but to establish Right

Our Swords were drawn: For such is Heav'n's Command Immutable. By us great Mahomet,

And his Succeffor, holy Abubeker, Invite you to the Paith.

Artum. [Afide.] So then it feems
There's no Harm meant; we're only to be beaten

Into

Into a new Religion ____ If that's all, I find I am already half a Convert.

Eum. Now in the Name of Heav'n, what Faith is this That stalks Gigantick forth thus arm'd with Terrors, As if it meant to Ruin, not to save? That leads embattel'd Legions to the Field, And marks its Progress out with Blood and Slaughter? Herb. Bold front less Men! that impudently dare

To blend Religion with the worst of Crimes!
And facrilegiously have stol'n that Name,
To cover Frauds, and justify Oppression!

Eum. Where are your Priests? What Doctors of your

To solve our Doubts, and satisfy our Reason,
And kindly lead us thro' the Wilds of Error
To these new Tracks of Truth?—This wou'd be Friendship,

And well might claim our Thanks.

Cal. Friendship like this
With Scorn had been receiv'd; your numerous Vices,
Your classing Sects, your mutual Rage and Strife
Have driv'n Religion, and her Angel-Guards,
Like Out-casts from among you. In her Stead
Usurping Superstition bears the Sway,
And reigns in mimick State, 'midst Idol Shews,
And Pageantry of Pow'r. Who does not mark
Your Lives? Rebellious to Heav'n's gentler Precepts
That mildly taught you—therefore Mahomet
Has brought the Sword to govern you by Force,
Nor will accept Obedience so precarious.

Eum. O solemn Truths! tho' from an impious Tongue! [Afide.

That we're unworthy of our holy Faith,
To Heav'n with Grief and conscious Shame we own.
But what are you, that thus arraign our Vices,
And consecrate your own? Vile Hypocrites!
Are you not Sons of Rapine, Foes to Peace, Base Robbers, Murderers——

Eum. Then fay
Why have you ravaged all our peaceful Borders?
Plunder'd our Towns? and by what Claim ev'n now
You tread this Ground?

Herb. What Claim, but that of Hunger?
The Claim of ravenous Wolves, that leave their Dens
To prowl at Midnight round some sleeping Village,
Or watch the Shepherd's folded Flock for Prey?
Cal. Blasphemers, know, your Fields and Towns are ours.

Our Prophet has bestow'd 'em on the Faithful, And Heav'n has ratify'd the Grant above.

Eum. Oh! now indeed you boast a noble Title! What cou'd your Prophet grant? a Hireling Slave! Not ev'n the Mules and Camels which he drove Were his to give; and yet the bold Impostor Has canton'd out the Kingdoms of the Earth, In frantick Fits of visionary Power,

To footh his Pride, and bribe his Fellow-Madmen!

Cal. Was it for this you fent to ask a Parley,
T' affront our Faith, and to traduce our Prophet?
Well might we answer you with quick Revenge
For such Indignities.—Yet here once more,
Hear this our last Demand; and this accepted
We yet withdraw our War. Be Christians still,
But swear to live with Us in firm Alliance,
To yield us Aids, and pay us annual Tribute.

Eum. No;—Should we grant you Aid, we must be Rebels:

And Tribute is the flavish Badge of Conquest.
Yet since, on just and honourable Terms,
We ask but for our own,—Ten siken Vests,
Weighty with Pearl and Gems, we'll send your Caliph;
Two, Caled, shall be thine; two thine, Abudab.
To each inferior Captain we decree

A Turbant spun from our Damascus' Flax
White as the Snows of Heav'n; to every Soldier
A Scimitar. This, and of solid Gold
Ten Ingots, be the Price to buy your Absence.

Ten Ingots, be the Price to buy your Absence.

Cal. This, and much more, ev'n all your shining

Will foon be ours; Look round your Syrian Frontiers! See, in how many Towns our hoisted Flags Are waving in the Wind; Sachna, and Hawran, Proud Tadmor, Aracab, and stubborn Bofra Have bow'd beneath the Yoke;—Behold our March O'er half your Land, like Flame thro' Fields of Harvest. And last view Aizandin, that Vale of Blood! There seek the Souls of forty thousand Greeks That, fresh from Life, yet bover o'er their Bodies. Then think, and then resolve.

Herb. Presumptuous Men!

What the you yet can boast successful Guilt, Is Conquest only yours? Or dare you hope That you shall still pour on the swelling Tide, Like some proud River that has lest its Banks, Nor ever know Repulse?

Eum. Have you forgot?

Not twice seven Years are past since ev'n your Prophet, Bold as he was, and boasting Aid Divine, Was by the Tribe of Corash, forc'd to fly, Poorly to fly, to save his wretched Life, From Mecca to Medina?

Abu. No, forgot?
We well remember how Medina skreen'd
That holy Head, preserv'd for better Days,
And ripening Years of Glory!

Dar. Why, my Chiefs,

Will you waste Time, in offering Terms despis'd To these Idolaters?—Words are but Air, Blows wou'd plead better.

Car. Daran, thou fay'ft true.

Christians, here end our Truce. Behold once more The Sword of Heav'n is drawn! Nor shall be sheath'd But in the Bowels of Damascus.

Eum. That,
Of speedy Vengeance, and Destruction due
To the proud Menacers, as Heav'n sees sit!

Eudocia.

All's hush'd around—No more the Shouts of Soldiers
And Clash of Arms tumultuous fill the Air.
Methinks this Interval of Terror seems
Like that when the loud Thunder just has roll'd
O'er our affrighted Heads, and in the Heav'ns
A momentary Silence but prepares
A second and a louder Clap to follow.

Enter Phocyas.

O no—my Heroe comes, with better Omens, And every gloomy Thought is now no more.

Pho. Where is the Treasure of my Soul?—Eudocia, Behold me here impatient, like the Miser That often steals in secret to his Gold, And counts with trembling Joy, and jealous Transport, The shining Heaps which he still sears to lose.

Eud. Welcome, thou brave, thou best deserving Lover! How do I doubly share the common Sasety, Since 'tis a Debt to thee!—but tell me, Phocyas, Dost thou bring Peace?—thou dost, and I am happy!

Pho. Not yet, Eudocia; 'tis decreed by Heav'n I must do more to merit thy Esteem.

Peace, like a frighted Dove, has wing'd her Flight To distant Hills, beyond these hostile Tents;

And thro'em we must thither force our Way, If we wou'd call the lovely Wanderer back To her forsaken Home.

Eud. False flattering Hope!
Vanish'd so soon!——alas, my Faithful Fears
Return, and tell me We must still be wretched!

Pho. Not so, my Fair; if thou but gently smile, Inspiring Valour, and presaging Conquest, These barbarous Foes to Peace and Love shall soon Be chas'd, like Fiends before the Morning Light, And all be calm again.

Eud. Is the Truce ended!
Must War, alas, renew its bloody Rage?
And Phocyas ever be expos'd to Danger?

Pho. Think for whose fake Denger itself has Charms. Difmiss thy Fears; the lucky Hour comes on, Full fraught with Joys, when my big Soul no more Shall labour with this Secret of my Paffion, To hide it from thy jealous Father's Eyes. Just now, by Signals from the Plain, I've learn'd That the proud Foe refuse us Terms of Honour; A Sally is resolv'd; the Citizens And Soldiers, kindled into fudden Fury, Press all in Crouds, and beg I'll lead 'em on. O my Eudocia! if I now fucceed-Did I fay if-I must, I will; the Cause Is Love, 'tis Liberty, it is Eudocia! -What then shall hinder, fince our mutual Faith Is pledg'd, and thou confenting to my Bliss, But I may boldly ask thee of Eumenes, Nor fear a Rival's more prevailing Claim?

Eud. May Bleffings still attend thy Arms!—Methinks I've caught the Flame of thy Heroick Ardor!
And now I see thee crown'd with Palm and Olive;
The Soldiers bring thee back with Songs of Triumph And loud applauding Shouts; thy rescu'd Country Resounds thy Praise; our Emperor Heraclius Decrees thee Honours for a City sav'd,
And Pillars rise of Monumental Brass
Inscrib'd——To Phocyas the Deliverer.

Pho. The Honours and Rewards which thou haft

My Soul is full of thee!—Thou art my All

Of Fame, of Triumph, and of suture Fortune.

'Twas Love of thee first sent me forth in Arms,

My Service all is thine, to thee devoted,

And thou alone canst make ev'n Conquest pleasing.

Eud. O do not wrong thy Merit, nor restrain it To narrow Bounds; but know, I best am pleas'd To share thee with thy Country. O my Phocyas! With conscious Blushes oft I've heard thy Vows, And strove to hide, yet more reveal'd my Heart;

Seem'd much surpriz'd; but taking soon th' Alarm Gather'd some hafty Troops, and march'd to meet us. The Captain of these Bands look'd wild and fierce, His Head unarm'd, as if in Scorn of Danger, And naked to the Waift; as he drew near He rais'd his Arm, and shook a pon'd'rous Lance; When all at once, as at a Signal giv'n, We heard the TECBIR, fo these Arnbs call Their Shouts of Onset, when with loud Appeal They challenge Heav'n, as if demanding Conquest The Battle join'd, and thro' the barbarous Hoft Fight, Fight, and Paradife was all the Cry. At last our Leaders met; and gallant Phocyas -But what are Words to tell the mighty Wonders We faw him then perform?—their Chief unhors'd, The Saracens soon broke their Ranks, and fled; And Enter Phocyas. Eumenes meeting bim.

Eum. Joy to brave Phocyas!

Eumenes gives him back the Joy he fent.

The welcome News has reach'd this Place before thee, How shall thy Country pay the Debt she owes thee?

Pho. By taking this as earnest of a Debt Which I owe her, and fain wou'd better pay.

Phocyas, thou haft done bravely, and 'tis fit Successful Virtue take a Time to rest, Fortune is fickle, and may change; besides, What shall we gain, if from a mighty Ocean By Sluices we draw off some little Streams? If Thousands fall, ten Thousands more remain. Nor ought we hazard Worth fo great as thine Against such Odds; suffice what's done already: And let us now, in hope of better Days, Keep wary Watch, and wait th' expected Succours.

Pho. What!---to be coop'd whole Months within our Walls?

To rust at home, and sicken with Inaction: The Courage of our Men will droop and die. If not kept up by daily Exercise. Again the beaten Foe may force our Gates; And Victory, if flighted thus, take Wing,

And fly where she may find a better Welcome. Art. [Aside.] It must be so-he hates him! on my Soul.

This Herbis is a foul old envious Knave. Methinks Eumenes too might better thank him.

Eum. [to Herbis, Aside.] Urge him no more; I'll think of thy late Warning,

And thou shalt see I'll yet be Governor.

Messenger. The Letter, fasten'd to an Arrow's Head, Was shot into the Town,

Eum. I fear he's taken.

O Phocyas, Herbis, Artamon! my Friends!
You all are Sharers in this News; the Storm
Is blowing o'er, that hung like Night upon us,
And threaten'd deadly Ruin—Hafte, proclaim
The welcome Tidings loud thro' all the City.
Let sparkling Lights be seen from ev'ry Turret
To tell our Joy, and spread their Blaze to Heav'n!
Prepare for Feasts; Danger shall wait at Distance,
And Fear be now no more. The jolly Soldier
And Citizen shall meet o'er their full Bowls,
Forget their Toils, and laugh their Cares away,
And Mirth and Triumphs close this happy Day.

Pho. And may succeeding Days prove yet more hap-

Well dost thou bid the Voice of Triumph sound
Thro' all our Streets; our City calls thee Father;
And say, Eumenes, dost thou not perceive
A Father's Transport rise within thy Breast,
Whilst in this Act thou art the Hand of Heav'n
To deal forth Blessings, and distribute Joy?

Eum. The Bleffings Heav'n bestows are freely sent, And shou'd be freely shar'd.

Pho. True; —— Generous Minds
Redoubled feel the Pleasures they impart.

D

For me, if I've deserv'd by Arms or Councils, By Hazards gladly sought, and greatly prosper'd, Whate'er I've added to the Publick Stock, With Joy I see it in Eumenes' Hands, And wish but to receive my Share from thee.

Eum. I cannot if I wou'd, withold thy Share.
What thou hast done is thine; the Fame thy own;

And virtuous Actions will reward themselves.

Pho. Fame?———What is that, if courted for hersels?

Less than a Vision; a meer Sound, an Echo, That calls with mimick Voice thro' Woods and Labyrinths

Her cheated Lovers; lost and heard by Fits,
But never fix'd; a feeming Nymph, yet nothing,
Virtue indeed is a substantial Good,
A real Beauty; yet with weary Steps
Thro' rugged Ways, by long laborious Service,
When we have trac'd, and woo'd, and won the Dame,
May we not then expect the Dower she brings?

Eum. Well-alk that Dower; say, can Damascus pay it?

Her Riches shall be tax'd, name but the Sum, Her Merchants with some costly Gems shall grace thee. Nor can Heraclius sail to grant thee Honours, Proportion'd to thy Birth and thy Desert.

Eum. Eudocia?—Phocyas, I am yet thy Friend, And therefore will not hold thee long in Doubt.

Thou must not thing of her.

Pho. Not think of her?

Impossible!——She's ever present to me,
My Life, my Soul, She animates my Being,
And kindles up my Thoughts to worthy Actions,
And why, Eumenes, why not think of her?

Is not my Rank-

Eum. Forbear — what need a Herald
To tell me who thou art? — Yet once again—
Since thou wilt force me to a Repetition,
I fay, thou must not think of her.

Pho. Yet hear me ;

Why wilt thou judge, e'er I can plead my Cause?

Eum. Why wilt thou plead in vain? hast thou not heard

My Choice has destin'd her to Eutyches!

Pho. And has she then consented to that Choice?

Eum. Has she consented?—What is her Consent?

Is the not mine?

Pho. She is—and in that Title
Ev'n Kings with Envy may behold thy Wealth,
And think their Kingdoms poor!—and yet, Eumenes,
Shall she, by being thine, be barr'd a Privilege
Which ev'n the meanest of her Sex may claim?
Thou wilt not force her?——

Eum. Who has told thee so?

I'd force her to be happy.

Pho. That thou can't not.

What happiness subsists in Loss of Freedom?
The Guest constrain'd but murmuts at the Banquet,
Nor thanks his Host, but starves amidst Abundance.

Eum. 'Tis well, young Man! - Why then I'll learn from thee

To be a very tame obedient Father.

Thou hast already taught my Child her Duty.

I find the Source of all her Disobedience,
Her Hate of me, her Scorn of Eutyches;
Ha! is't not so?—come tell me; I'll forgive thee.

Hast thou not sound her a most ready Scholar?

Eum.

Was I, to think I ever had a Daughter!

Pho. I'm forry that Eumenes thinks——

Eum. No——Sorry?

Sorry for what? then thou dost own thou'st wrong'd me!

That's somewhat yet—Curse on my stupid Blindness; For had I Eyes I might have seen it sooner, Was this the Spring of thy Romantick Bravery, Thy boastful Merit, thy officious Service?

Pho. It was—with Pride I own it—'twas Eudocia! I have ferv'd thee in ferving her, thou know'st it, And thought I might have found a better Treatment. Why wilt thou force me thus to be a Braggard, And tell thee that which thou shou'dst tell thyself? It grates my Soul——I am not wont to talk thus. But I recall my Words——I have done nothing, And wou'd disclaim all Merit but my Love.

Eum. O no—fay on, that thou hast fav'd Damascus, is it not so?——Look o'er her Battlements, See, if the flying Foe have left their Camp! Why are our Gates yet clos'd, if thou hast freed Us? 'Tis true, thou sought'st a Skirmish——what of that? Had Eutyches been present.———

Pho. Eutyches!

Why wilt thou urge my Temper with that Trifler? O let him come! that in yon spacious Plain We may together charge the thickest Ranks, Rush on to Battle, Wounds, and glorious Death, And prove who 'twas that best deserv'd Eudocia.

Eum. That will be seen e'er long—but since I find Thou arrogantly wou'dst usurp Dominion, Believ'st thy self the Guardian Genius here, And that our Fortunes hang upon thy Sword; Be that first try'd—for know, that from this Moment Thou here hast no Command—Farewell!—So stay, Or hence and joyn the Foe—thou hast thy Choice.

And yet 'tis worse than Death what I have suffer'd; It is the Death of Honour!——— Yet that's little; 'Tis more Eudocia, 'tis the Loss of thee!

Eud. Hast thou not conquer'd !-What are all these

Shouts,

This Voice of general Joy heard far around?
What are these Fires, that cast their glimmering Light
Against the Sky? Are not all these thy Triumph?

Pho. O name not Triumph! talk no more of Conquest !

It is indeed a Night of general Joy, But not to me; Eudocia, I am come To take a last Farewel of thee for ever.

Eud. A last Farewel?

Pho. Yes; — How wilt thou hereafter
Look on a Wretch despis'd, revil'd, cashier'd,
Strip'd of Command, like a base beaten Coward?
Thy cruel Father — I have told too much;
I shou'd not but for this have felt the Wounds
I got in fight for him — now, now they bleed.
But I have done — and now thou hast my Story,
Is there a Creature so accurst as Phocyas?

Eud. And can it be?—Is this then thy Reward?

O Phocyas! never wou'dst thou tell me yet

That thou hadst Wounds; now I must feel them too.

For is it not for me thou hast borne this?

What else cou'd be thy Crime?—wert thou a Tray-

tor,

Hadst thon betray'd us, sold us to the Foe—

Pho. Wou'd I be yet a Traytor, I have Leave;

Nay, I am dar'd to it with mocking Scorn.

My Crime indeed was asking thee; that only

Has cancell'd all, if I had any Merit;

The City now is sase, my Service slighted,

And I discarded like an useless Thing,

Nay, bid me be gone—and, if I like that better,

Seek out new Friends, and join yon barbarous Host.

Pho. To my Grave;
Where can I have also this foul Disgrace?
Where can I bury else this foul Disgrace?
Alas! that Question shews how poor I am,
How very much a Wretch, for if I go,
It is from thee, thou only Joy of Life;
And Death will then be welcome.
Eud. Art thou fure
Thou haft been us'd thus? - Art thou quite undone?
Pho. Yes, very fure What dost thou mean?
Eud. That then, it is a Time for me-O Heav'n!
that I
Alone am grateful to this wondrous Man!
nay, glory in thee,
And shew without a blush, how much I love.

O no—we will not part!—confirm it, Heav'n!

Eud. Why wilt thou name him?

B4 Muft

Must I yet call him so, this cruel Father? How wilt thou now deliver poor Eudocia?

Pho. See! how we're join'd in Exile, how our Fate Conspires to warn us both to leave this City! Thou know'st the Emperor is now at Antioch; I have an Uncle there, who, when the Perfian, As now the Saracen, had nigh o'er-run The ravag'd Empire, did him signal Service, And nobly was rewarded. There, Eudocia, Thou might'st be safe, and I may meet with Justice.

Eud. There—any where, so we may fly this Place. See, Phocyas, what thy Wrongs and mine have wrought In a weak Woman's Frame! for I have Courage To share thy Exile now thro' ev'ry Danger. Danger is only here, and dwells with Guilt, With base Ingratitude, and hard Oppression.

Pho. Then let us lose no Time, but hence this Night. The Gates I can command, and will provide The Means of our Escape. Some five Hours hence ('Twill then be turn'd of Midnight) we may meet In the Piazza of Honoria's Convent.

Eud. I know it well; the Place is most secure, And near adjoyning to this Garden Wall. There thou shalt find me—O protect us, Heav'n!

Pho. Fear not;—thy Innocence will be our Guard. I've thought already how to shape our Course. Some pitying Angel will attend thy Steps, Guide thee unseen, and charm the sleeping Foe, 'Till thou art safe! O I have suffer'd nothing; Thos gaining thee, and this great generous Proof, How blest am I in my Eudocia's Love! My only Joy, Farewel!

Eud. Farewel, my Phocyas!
I've now no Friend but thee—yet thee I'll call Friend, Father, Lover, Guardian!—Thou art all.

MERCY? What's that?—Look yonder, on the

Of our late Fight !- Go talk of Mercy there.

Will the Dead hear thy Voice?

Serg. O spare me yet!

Cal. Thou Wretch! Spare thee? to what? to live in Torture?

Are not thy Limbs all bruis'd, thy Bones disjointed, To force thee to confess? And wou'dst thou drag, Like a crush'd Serpent, a vile mangled Being? My Eyes abhor a Coward—Hence, and die!

Serg. O, I have told thee all!—When first pursu'd,

I fix'd my Letters on an Arrow's Point,

And thot them o'er the Walls-

Cal. Haft thou told all?

Well, then thou shalt have Mercy to requite thee:
Behold, I'll send thee forward on thy Errand.
Strike off his Head; then cast it o'er the Gates;
There let thy Tongue tell o'er its Tale again.

Serg. O bloody Saracen!

Upon our Shame, e'er doubly we've redeem'd it. Have all the Captains Notice?

Abu. I have walk'd

The Rounds to night, e'er the last Hour of Prayer, From Tent to Tent, and warn'd them to be ready.

What must be done?

thee.

Cal. Thou know'st th' important News, Which we have intercepted by this Slave, Of a new Army's March. The Time now calls, While these soft Syrians are dissolved in Riot, Fool'd with Success, and not suspecting Danger, Neglectful of their Watch, or else fast bound In Chains of Sleep, Companion of Debauches, To form a new Attack e'er break of Day. So, like the wounded Leopard, shall we rush From out our Covert on these drowly Hunters, And seize 'em unprepar'd to 'scape our Vengeance.

Abu. Great Captain of the Armies of the Faithful! I know thy mighty and unconquer'd Spirit. Yet hear me, Caled; hear, and weigh my Doubts. Our angry Prophet frowns upon our Vices, And visits us in Blood. . Why else did Terrors Unknown before seize all our stoutest Bands? The Angel of Destruction was abroad; The Archers of the Tribe of Theal fled, So long renown'd, or spent their Shafts in vain; The feather'd Flights err'd thro' the boundless Air, Or the Death turn'd on him that drew the Bow! What can this boad? — Let me speak plainer yet; Is it to propagate th' unspotted Law We fight? 'tis well, it is a noble Cause! But much I fear Infection is among us; A boundless Lust of Rapine guides our Troops. We learn the Christian Vices we chastise, And tempted with the Pleasures of the Soil, More than with diffant Hopes of Paradife, I fear, may foon-but Oh! avert it Heav'n-Fall ev'n a Prey to our own Spoils and Conquetts. Cal. No-thou mistak'st; thy pious Zeal deceives

Ont

Our Prophet only chides our Sluggard Valour.

Thou saw'st how in the Vale of Honan once
The Troops, as now deseated, sled confus'd
Ev'n to the Gates of Mecca's holy City;
Till Mahomet himself there stopp'd their Entrance,
A Javelin in his Hand, and turn'd them back
Upon the Foe; they sought again, and conquer'd.
Behold how best we may appease his Wrath!
His own Example points us out the Way.

Abu. Well - be it then refolv'd. Th' indulgent

Hour

Of better Fortune is, I hope, at Hand.
And yet, fince Phocyas has appear'd its Champion,
How has this City rais'd its drooping Head?
As if some Charm prevail'd where'er he sought,
Our Strength seems wither'd, and our feeble Weapons
Forget their wonted Triumph—were he absent——

Cal. I wou'd have fought him out in the last Action To single fight, and put that Charm to Proof, Had not a foul and sudden Mist arose E'er I arriv'd to have restor'd the Combat. But let it be—'tis past. We yet may meet, And 'twill be known whose Arm is then the stronger.

Enter Dagan.

Dar. Health to the Race of Ismael! and Days
More prosp'rous than the last;—a Christian Captive
Is fall'n within my Watch, and waits his Doom.

Cal. Bring forth the Slave!—O thou keen Vulture Death!

Do we then feed thee only thus by Morfels? Whole Armies never can susfice thy Hunger.

Daran goes out, and re-enters with Phocyas.

Cal. Whence, and what art thou? — of Damascus? — Daran,

Where didst thou find this dumb and sullen Thing, That seems to lowr Defiance on our Anger?

Dar. Marching in Circuit, with the Horse thou gavest me,

T'observe the City Gates, I saw from far Two Persons issue sorth; the one advanc'd,

And

ceives

And e'er he cou'd retreat, my Horsemen seiz'd him. The other was a Woman, and had fled, Upon a Signal giv'n at our Approach, And got within the Gate. Wou'dst thou know more, Himself, if he will speak, can best inform thee.

Cal. Have I not feen thy Face?

Abu. [to Caled.] He hears thee not; His Eyes are fix'd on Earth; fome deep Distress Is at his Heart. This is no common Captive.

Cal. A Lion in the Toils! We foon shall tame him. Sill art thou dumb?—Nay, 'tis in vain to cast Thy gloomy Looks so oft around this Place, Or frown upon thy Bonds—thou canst not 'scape.

Pho. Then be it fo—the worst is past already, And Life is now not worth a Moment's Pause. Do you not know me yet?—think of the Man You have most Cause to curse, and I am he.

Cal Ha! Phocyas?

Abu. Phocyas? — Mahomet, we thank thee! Now thou dolt fmile again.

Dar. [Afide.] O Devil, Devil!
And I not know him?—'twas but Yesterday
He kill'd my Horse, and drove me from the Field.
Now I'm reveng'd! No; hold you there, not yet,
Not while he lives.

Cal. [Afide.] This is indeed a Prize!
Is it because thou know'st what slaughter'd Heaps
There yet unbury'd lye without our Camp,
Whose Ghosts have all this Night, passing the Zorat,
Call'd from that Bridge of Death on thee to follow,
That now thou'rt here to answer to their Cry?
Howe'er it be, thou know'st thy Welcome—
Pho. Yes,

Thou proud, blood-thirsty Arab!—Well I know What to expect from thee; I know ye all. How shou'd the Authors of Distress and Ruin Be mov'd to Pity! that's a Human Passion; No—in your hungry Eyes, that look Revenge, I read my Doom. Where are your Racks, your Tortures?

Mine,

I'm ready—lead me p'em; I can bear
The worst of Ills from you. You're not my Friends,
My Countrymen.—Yet were ye Men, I cou'd
Unfold a Story—but no more—Eumenes,
Thou hast thy Wish, and I am now—a Worm!

Abu. [to Caled afide.] Leader of Armies, hear him! for my Mind

Presages Good accruing to our Cause

By this Event.

Cal. I tell thee then, thou wrong'st Us,
To think our Hearts thus seal'd, or our Ears deaf
To all that thou may'st utter. Speak, disclose
That secret Woe that throbs within thy Breast.
Now, by the silent Hours of Night! we'll hear thee,
And mute Attention shall await thy Words.

Pho. This is not then the Palace in Damascus!

If ye will hear, then I indeed have wrong'd you.

How can this be?—When he for whom I've fought,
Fought against you, has yet refus'd to hear me!

You seem surpriz'd.—It was Ingratitude
That drove me out from those abandon'd Walls,
An Exile, not a Foe.

Abu. Is't possible?

Tor-

Are these thy Christian Friends? Cal. 'Tis well-we thank'em.

They help us to subdue themselves.—But who Was that Companion of thy Flight?—A Woman, So Daran said—

Pho. 'Tis there I am most wretched—
O I am torne from all my Soul held dear,
And my Life's Blood flows out upon the Wound!
That Woman—'twas for her—How shall I speak it?—
Eudocia, O farewel!——I'll tell you then,
As fast as these Heart rending Sighs will let me;
I lov'd the Daughter of the proud Eumenes,
And long in secret woo'd her; not unwelcome
To her my Visits; but I fear'd her Father,
Who oft had press'd her to detested Nuptials,
And therefore durst not till this Night of Joy
Avow to him my Courtship. Now I thought her

Mine, by a double Claim, of mutcal Vows,
And Service yielded at his greatest Need.
When, as I mov'd my Suit, with sow'r Disdain
He mock'd my Service, and sorbade my Love;
Degraded me from the Command I bore,
And with Defiance bade me seek the Foe.
How has his Curse prevail'd!—The generous Maid
Was won by my Distress to leave the City;
And cruel Fortune made me thus your Prey.

Abu. [Afide.] My Soul is mov'd. - Thou wert a Man, O Prophet!

For injur'd Merit, tho' 'tis in a Foe!

Pho. Now-fince you've heard my Story, fet me

free,

That I may fave her yet, dearer than Life, From a tyrannick Father's threaten'd Force; Gold, Gems and Purple Vests shall pay my Ransome; Nor shall my peaceful Sword henceforth be drawn In Fight, nor break its Truce with you for ever.

Cal. No;—there's one Way, a better—and but one,

To fave thyself, and make some Reparation For all the Numbers thy bold Hand has slain.

Pho. O name it quickly, and my Soul will blefs thee!

Cal. Embrace our Faith, and share with us our For-

Pho. Then I am loft again! Cal. What! When we offer

Not Freedom only, but to raise thee high

To Greatness, Conquest, Glory, Heavinly Blis!

Pho. To sink me down to Infamy, Perdition,

To present Times, to eviry future Age
A Proverb and a Scorn!—take back thy Mercy,

And know I now difdain it.

Cal. As thou wilt.

The Time's too precious to be wasted longer In Words with thee. Thou know'st thy Doom—— Farewel, [Daran waiting at a distance.] Phocyas. Farewel, and think of Death! - was it not fo? Do Murderers then preach Morality ?-But how to think of what the Living know not, And the Dead cannot, or elfe may not tell?-What art thou, O thou great mysterious Terror! The Way to thee we know; Diseases, Famine, Sword, Fire, and all thy ever-open Gates That Day and Night stand ready to receive us. But what's beyond them ?-Who will draw that Veil? Yet Death's not there-No; 'tis a Point of Time. The Verge 'twixt mortal and immortal Being. Abu. Think again.

Caled, by me, once more, renews that Offer.

Pho. Thou fay'ft thou art my Friend; why dost thou try

To shake the settled Temper of my Breast? My Soul has just discharg'd her cumbrous Train Of Hopes and Fears, prepar'd to take her Voyage To other Seats, where the may rest in Peace; And now thou call'it me back, to beat again The painful Roads of Life. Tempt me no more To be a Wretch, for I despise the Offer.

Abu. The General knows thee brave, and 'tis for that

He feeks Alliance with thy noble Virtues.

thus treat me?

No; he believes I am so poor of Soul, That barely for the Privilege to live,

I wou'd be bought his Slave. But go, and tell him,
The little Space of bife his Scorn bequeath'd me
Was lent in vain, and he may take the Forfeit.

Abu. Why wilt thou wed thyfelf to Mifery,
When our Faith courts thee to eternal Bieffings?
When Truth itself is, like a Seraph, come
To loofe thy Bonds? — The Light Divine, whose Beams

Pierc'd thro' the Gloom of Hera's facted Cave, And there illumin'd the great Mahomet, Arabia's Morning-Star, now shines on thee. Arise, salute with Joy the Guest from Heav'n, Follow her Steps, and be no more a Captive

Pho. But whither must I follow?—answer that.

Is she a Guest from Heav'n? What Marks Divine,
What Signs, what Wonders vouch her boasted Mission?

Abu. What Wonders?—turn thy Eyes to Mecca!
mark

How from Caaba, first, that hallow'd Temple,
Her Glory dawn'd!—then look how swift its Course,
As when the Sun-beams shooting thro' a Cloud
Drive o'er the Meadow's Face the flying Shades!
Have not the Nations bent before our Swords,
Like ripen'd Corn before the Reaper's Steel?
Why is all this? Why does Success still wait
Upon our Law, if not to shew that Heav'n
First sent it forth, and owns it still by Conquest?

Pho. Dost thou ask why is this?—O why indeed? Where is the Man can read Heav'n's secretCouncils? Why did I conquer in another Cause, Yet now am here?——

Abu. I'll tell thee—thy good Angel
Has feiz'd thy Hand unseen, and snatch'd thee out
From swift Destruction; know, e'er Day shall dawn
Damaseus will in Blood lament its Fall;
We've heard what Army is design'd to march
Too late to save her. Now, ev'n now, our Force
Is just preparing for a fresh Assault.
Now too thou might'st revenge thy Wrongs—so Caled
Charg'd me to say; and more, that he invites thee,

Thou know'st the Terms-to share with him the Conquest.

Pho. Conquest?—Revenge?—Hold, let me think— O Horror!

Revenge? O what Revenge? Bleed on, my Wounds;

For thus to be reveng'd, were it not worse. Than all that I can suffer?—But Eudocia—Where will she then—Shield her, ye pitying Pow'rs, And let me die in Peace!

Abu. Hear me once more,

'Tis all I have to offer; mark me now! Caled has sworn Eudocia shall be safe.

Pho. Ha! Safe?—but how? a wretched Captive too!

Abu. He swears she shall be free, she shall be thine.

Pho. Then I am lost indeed—O cruel Bounty!

How can I be at once both curst and happy?

Abu. The Time draws near, and I must quickly leave thee;

But first reflect, that in this fatal Night Slaughter and Rapine may be loos'd Abroad, And while they roam with undistinguish'd Rage, Shou'd she thou lov'st—well may'st thou start—be made, Perhaps unknown, some barb'rous Soldier's Prey, Shou'd she then fall a Sacrifice to Lust Or brutal Fury—

Pho. O—this pulls my Heart-strings! [Falls. Earth open—fave me, save me from that Thought, There's Ruin in it; 'twill, it will undo me.

Abu. Nay, do not plunge thyself in black Despair; Look up, poor Wretch, thou art not shipwreck'd yet, Behold an Anchor; am not I thy Friend?

Yet hear me and be bleft-

Pho. [rifing] Hah! who, what art thou? [Raving. My Friend? that's well; but hold —— are all Friends honest?

What's to be done?—Hush, Hark! what Voice is that!

Abu. Heav'n shews thee what.

Nay, now it is too late; fee, Caled comes With Anger on his Brow; quickly withdraw To the next Tent, and there—

Pho. [Raving] What do I fee?

Damascus! Conquest! Ruin! Rapes and Murder! Villains—Is there no way—O save her, save her!

[Exit with Abudah.

Enter Caled and Daran.

Dar. Behold, on thy Approach they shift their Ground.

Cal. 'Tis as thou fay'ft, he trifles with my Mercy. Dar. Speak, shall I fetch his Head?

Cal. No, stay thou here,

I cannot spare thee yet. Raphan, go thou. [To an Officer. But hold—I've thought again—he shall not die. Go, tell him he shall live, till he has seen Damascus sink in Flame, 'till he behold 'That Slave, the Woman-Idol he adores, Or giv'n a Prize to some brave Mussulman, Or slain before his Face; then, if he sue For Death, as for a Boon—perhaps we'll grant it.

[Ex. Raphan.

Dar. The Captains wait thy Orders. Cal. Are the Troops

Ready to march?

Dar. They are [The Captains pass by as they are nam'd. Cal. Where's Abu-Taleb?

Alcorash?—O, your valiant Tribes, I thank 'em, Fled from their Standard! Will they now redeem it? Omar and Serjabil?——'tis well, I see 'em.

You know your Duty. You, Abdorraman, Must charge with Rapban. Mourn, thou haughty City! The Bow is bent, nor canst thou scape thy Doom.

Who turns his Back henceforth, our Prophet curse him!

Dar. But who commands the trusty Bands of Mecca?

Thou

Thou know'st their Leader sell in the last Fight.

Cal. 'Tis true, thou, Dardh, well deserv'st that Charge;

I've mark'd what a keen Hatred, like my own, Dwells in thy Breast against these Christian Dogs.

Dar. Thou doft me Right.

Cal. And therefore I'll reward it.

Be that Command now thine. And here—this Sabre, Bless'd in the Field by Mahomet himself,

At Chaiber's prosp'rous Fight, shall aid thy Arm.

Dar. Thanks, my good Chief; with this I'll better thank thee. [Taking the Scimitar.

Cal. Myself will lead the Troops of the Black Standard.

And at the Eastern Gate begin the Storm.

Dar. But why do we not move? 'twill soon be Day.

Methinks I'm cold, and wou'd grow warm with Action.

Cal. Then haste and tell Abudab—O thou'rt welcome,

Enter Abudah.

Thy Charge awaits thee. Where's the stubborn Captive?

Abu. Indeed he's brave. I left him for a Moment

In the next Tent. He's scarcely yet himself.

Cal. But is he ours?

Abu. The Threats of Death are nothing; Tho' thy last Message shook his Soul, as Winds. On the bleak Hills bend down some losty Pine; Yet still he held his Root; till I found Means, Abating somewhat of thy first Demand, If not to make him wholly ours, at least To gain sufficient to our End.

Cal. Say how!

Abu. Oft he inclin'd, oft started back; at last, When just consenting, for a-while he paus'd, Stood fix'd in Thought, and lift his Eyes to Heav'n; Then, as with fresh recover'd Force, cry'd out Renounce my Faith? Never—I answer'd, No, That now he shou'd not do it.

Cal. How?

By all he held most dear, nay by the Voice

Of Providence, that call'd him now to save,

With her he lov'd, perhaps the Lives of Thousands,

No longer to resist his better Fate,

But join his Arms in present Action with us,

And swear he wou'd be faithful.

Cal. What, no more? Then he's a Christian still? Abu. Have Patience yet:

For if by him we can furprize the City-

Cal. Say'st thou?

Abu. Hear what's agreed'; but on the Terms
That ev'ry unresisting Life be spar'd.

I shall command some chosen faithful Bands,
Phocyas will guide us to the Gate, from whence
He late escap'd, nor do we doubt but there
With Ease to gain Admittance.

Cal. This is something. And yet I do not like this Half-Ally-Is he not still a Christian?—but no Matter-Mean time I will attack the Eastern Gate; Who first succeeds gives Entrance to the rest. Hear, all !- Prepare ye now for boldest Deeds, And know the Prophet will reward your Valour. Think that ye all to certain Triumph move; Who falls in Fight yet meets the Prize above. There, in the Gardens of eternal Spring, While Birds of Paradife around you fing, Each, with his blooming Beauty by his Side. Shall drink rich Wines that in full Rivers glide, Breathe fragrant Gales o'er Fields of Spice that blow, And gather Fruits immortal as they grow. Ecstatick Bliss shall your whole Powers employ, And every Sense be lost in every Joy.

ACT IV. SCENE I.

SCENE, A great Square in the City, before the Governor's Palace.

Enter Abudah, Saracen Captains and Soldiers; with Eumenes, Herbis, and others of the Christians unarm'd.

EUMENES.

To be furpris'd thus?—Hell and all ye Fiends,
How did ye watch this Minute for Destruction?

Herb. We've been betray'd by Riot and Debauch;
Curse on the Traytor-Guard!

Eum. The Guard above,

Did that Sleep too?

Abu. Christians, complain no more.
What you have ask'd is granted. Are ye Men,
And dare ye question thus, with bold Impatience,
Eternal Justice!—Know, the Doom from Heav'n
Falls on your Towers, resistless as the Bolt
That fires the Cedars on your Mountain Tops.
Be meek, and learn with humble Awe to bear
The mitigated Ruin. Worse had follow'd,
Had ye oppos'd our Numbers. Now you're safe.
Quarter and Liberty are giv'n to all;
And little do ye think how much ye owe
To one brave Enemy, whom yet ye know not.

Enter Artamon bastis.

Art. All's lost !—Ha!—Who are these?

Eum. All's lost indeed.

Yield up thy Sword, if thou wou'dst share our Safety.

Thou com'st too late to bring us News.

Art. 0-no.

The News I bring is from the Eastern Guard. Caled has forc'd the Gate, and—but he's here.

A Cry without.] Ply, fly; they follow-Quarter,

Mercy, Quarter!

[Several Perfons as purfu'd run over the Stage.

Caled [without] No Quarter! Kill, I say; are they not Christians!

More Blood! our Prophet afks it.—

He enters with Daran, &c.

What, Abudab?

Well met !- but wherefore are these Looks of Peace ?

Why fleeps thy Sword?

Abu. Caled, our Talk is over.

Behold the Chiefs; they have refign'd the Palace.

Cal. And fworn t' obey our Law?

Abu. No.

Cal. Then fall on.

Abu. Hold yet, and hear me — Heav'n by me has fpar'd

The Sword its cruel Task. On easy Terms

We've gain'd a bloodless Conquest.

Cal. I renounce it.

Curse on those Terms; the City's mine by Storm.

Fall on, I fay-

Abu. Nay then, I swear Ye shall not.

Cal. Ha !- Who am I?

Abu. The General, and I know

What Reverence is your due.

[Cal. figns to his Men to fall on.

Nay, he who stirs

First makes his Way thro' me. My Honour's pledg'd;

Rob me of that who dares. [they stop] I know thee,

Chief in Command; bold, valiant, wise and faithful. But yet remember I'm a Mussulman,

Nay more, thou know'ft, Companion of the Prophet,

And what we vow is facred.

Why, Caled, do we thus expose ourselves
A Scorn to Nations that despite our Law?
Thou call'st me Christian—What? Is it because I prize my plighted Faith, that I'm a Christian?
Come, 'tis not well, and if—

Cal. What Terms are yielded?

Abu. Leave to depart, to all that will; an Oath First giv'n, no more to aid the War against us. An unmolested March. Each Citizen To take his Goods, no more than a Mule's Burden; The Chiefs six Mules, and ten the Governor. Besides some sew slight Arms for their Desence Against the Mountain Robbers.

Cal. Now, by Mahomet, Thou haft equipp'd an Army.

Abu. Canst thou doubt
The greater Part by far will chuse to stay,
Receive our Law, or pay th' accustom'd Tribute?
What fear we then from a few wretched Bands
Of scatter'd Fugitives?——besides thou know'st
What Towns of Strength remain yet unsubdu'd.
Let us appear this once like generous Victors,
So future Conquests shall repay this Bounty,
And willing Provinces ev'n court Subjection.

Cal. Well—be it on thy Head, if worse befall;
This once I yield—but see it then proclaim'd
Thro' all Damascus, that who will depart
Must leave the Place this Instant.—Pass, move on.

SCENE II. The Outside of a Nunnery.

Eudocia.

Darkness is fled; and yet the Morning Light Gives me more Fears than did Night's deadly Gloom.

Within, Without, All, all are Foes. - O Phocyas, Thou art perhaps at Rest; wou'd I were too!

Enter Phocyas.

Pho. Did I not hear the Murmurs of a Voice. This Way ?-- a Woman's too ?-- and feem'd complaining ? Hark !- No-O Torture! whither shall I turn me? I've fearch'd the Palace Rooms in vain; and now, I know not why, fome Instinct brought me hither .-'Twas here last Night we met. Dear, dear Eudocia! Eud. Do I yet see thee?

Yet hear thee speak? - O hast thou escap'd

From barbarous Swords, and Men that know not Mercy?

Pho. I've borne a thousand Deaths since our last part-

And feel I'm bleft beyond the Pow'r of Change. Eud. O yet beware-lest some Event unknown

Again shou'd part us.

Pho. [Afide.] Heav'n avert the Omen!

None can, my Fair, none shall. Eud. Alas! thy Transport

Pho. Enquire no more—thou thalt know all here-

Let me conduct thee hence

To what far distant Home?—But 'tis enough, That favour'd thus of Heav'n thou art my Guide. And as we journey on the painful Way, Say, wilt thou then beguile the passing Hours, And open all the Wonders of thy Story?

Pho. Indulge no more thy melancholy Thoughts.

Damascus is thy Home.

Eud. And yet thou fay'ft

It is no longer Ours!—Where is my Father?

Pho. To shew thee too how Fate seems every Way
To guard thy Sasety, ev'n thy Father now,
Wert thou within his Pow'r, wou'd stand deseated
Of his tyrannick Vow. Thou know'st last Night
What hope of Aids statter'd this soolish City;
At break of Day th' Arabian Scouts had seiz'd
A second Courier, and from him 'tis learn'd
That on their March the Army mutiny'd,
And Eutyches was slain.

Eud. And yet, that, now
Is of the leaft Importance to my Peace.
But answer me; say, where is now my Father?
Pho. Or gone, or just preparing to depart.

Eud. What! is our Doom revers'd? and is he then'
The wretched Fugitive?

Pho. Thou heav'nly Maid!

F

To free thee then from ev'ry anxious Thought, Know, I've once more wrong'd as I am, ev'n fav'd Thy Father's threaten'd Life, nay fav'd Damascus From Blood and Slaughter, and from total Ruin. Terms are obtain'd, and general Freedom granted To all that will, to leave in Peace the City.

Eud. Is't possible—now trust me I cou'd chide thee:
Tis much unkind to hold me thus in Doubt;
I pr'ythee clear these Wonders.

Pho. 'Twill furprise thee,

When thou shalt know-

Eud. What?

Pho. To what deadly Gulphs
Of Horror and Despair, what cruel Straits
Of agonizing Thought I have been driv'n
This Night, e'er my perplex'd, bewilder'd Soul
Cou'd find its Way — thou said'st that thou wou'dst chide;

I fear thou wilt; indeed I have done that I cou'd have wish'd t' avoid——but for a Cause So lovely, so belov'd——

Eud. What doft thou mean?

I'll not indulge a Thought that thou cou'dst do One Act unworthy of thyself, thy Honour, And that firm Zeal against these Foes of Heav'n Which won my Heart at first to share in all Thy Dangers and thy Fame, and with thee mine. Thou cou'dst not save thy Life by Means inglorious.

Pho. Alas! thou know'ft me not-I'm Man, frail Man,

To Error born; and who that's Man is perfect?
To fave my Life? O no; well was it rifqu'd
For thee! had it been loft, 'twere not too much,
And thou but fafe;—O what wou'dst thou have faid,
If I had rifqu'd my Soul to fave Eudocia?

Eud. Ha! Speak O no, be dumb it cannot

And yet thy Looks are chang'd, thy Lips grow pale. Why doft thou shake?—falas! I tremble too!

Thou cou'dst not, hast not sworn to Mahomet?

then '

here-

To

Pho. No-I shou'd first have dy'd-nay giv'n up thee.

End. O Phocyas! Was it well to try me thus?

And yet another deadly Fear succeeds.

How came these Wretches hither? Who reviv'd

Their fainting Arms to unexpected Triumph?

For while thou sought'st, and sought'st the Christian

Cause,

These batter'd Walls were Rocks impregnable, Their Tow'rs of Adamant. But O I fear Some Act of thine—

Pho. No more——I'll tell thee all;
But pr'ythee do not frown on me, Eudocia!——
I found the wakeful Foe in Midnight Council
Refolv'd, e'er Day, to make a fresh Attack,
Keen for Revenge, and hungry after Slaughter.
Cou'd my rack'd Soul bear that, and think of thee?
Nay think of thee expos'd a helpless Prey
To some sierce Russian's violating Arms?
O had the World been mine, in that Extreme
I shou'd have giv'n whole Provinces away,
Nay all—and thought it little for thy Ransom!

Eud. For this then—oh—thou hast betray'd the City! Distrustful in the Righteous Pow'rs above,
That still protect the Chaste and Innocent;
And to avert a seign'd uncertain Danger,
Thou hast brought certain Ruin on thy Country!

Pho. No, thou forget'st the friendly Terms——the Sword,

Which threaten'd to have fill'd these Streets with Blood, Is sheath'd in Peace; thy Father, thou, and all The Citizens are safe, uncaptiv'd, free.

Eud. Safe? free? O no-Life, Freedom, every Turns to a Curse, if sought by wicked Means.

Yet sure it cannot be!——Are these the Terms
On which we meet?—No—we can never meet
On Terms like these; the Hand of Death itself
Cou'd not have torn us from each other's Arms
Like this dire Act, this more than satal Blow!

But never, never Can I be made the curst Reward of Treason, To seal thy Doom, to bind a hellish League, And to ensure thy everlasting Woe.

Pho. What League ?—'tis ended—I renounce it-

I bend to Heav'n and thee—O thou Divine,
Thou matchles Image of all-perfect Goodness!
Do thou but pity yet the wretched Phoegas,
Heav'n will relent, and all may yet be well.

SCENE, An open Place in the City.

Enter Caled and Daran meeting.

CALED.

Dar. And, durst I say it, so, my Chief, I am.
I've spoke——if it offends, my Head is thine,

Take it, and I am filent.

Gal. No; fay on.

I know thee honest, and perhaps I guess

What knits thy Brow in Frowns-

Dar. Is this, my Leader,

A conquer'd City!—View yon Vale of Palms; Behold the vanquish'd Christian triumphs still, Rich in his Flight, and mocks thy barren War.

Cal. The Vale of Palms!

Dar. Beyond those Hills, the Place.
Where they agreed this Day to meet and halt,
To gather all their Forces: there, disguis'd,
Just now I've view'd their Camp—O I cou'd custe
My Eyes for what they've seen.

Cal. What haft thou feen ?

Dar. Why, all Damascus; ——All its Soul, its Life, Its Heart's-blood, all its Treasure, Piles of Plate, Crosses enrich'd with Gems, Arras and Silks, And Vests of Gold, unfolded to the Sun, That rival all his Lustre.

Cal. So forward too? Curse on this soolish Treaty.

Dar. Forward—it looks as they had been sorewarn'd.

By Mabomet, the Land wears not the Face

Of War, but Trade; and thou wou'dst swear, its Merchants

Were fending forth their loaded Caravans To all the neighbouring Countries.

Cal. [Afide.] Ha! this flarts
A lucky Thought of Mahomet's first Exploit,
When he pursu'd the Caravan of Corast,
And from a thousand mis-believing Slaves
Wrested their ill-heap'd Goods, transferr'd to thrive
In holier Hands, and propagate the Faith.

[To Daran.] 'Tis faid the Emperor had a Wardrobe here Of colly Silks.

Dar. That too they have remov'd.

Cal. Dogs! Infidels! 'tis more than was allow'd,
Dar. And shall we not pursue 'em _____ Robbers!

Thieves!
That steal away themselves, and all they're worth,

And wrong the valiant Soldier of his Due.

Cal. [Afide.] The Caliph shall know this — he shall,

Abudah.

This is thy Coward Bargain——I renounce it.

Daran, we'll stop their March, and make a Search.

Dar. And strip?

Dar. That's well And yet I fear Abudab's Christian Friend-

Cal. If possible,

He shou'd not know of this; no, nor Abudah.

By the seven Heav'ns! his Soul's a Christian too,
And 'tis by Kindred Instinct he thus saves

Their cursed Lives, and taints our Cause with Mercy.

Dar. I knew my General wou'd not fuffer this, Therefore I've Troops prepar'd without the Gate, Just mounted for pursuit. Our Arab Horse

Will

Will in few Minutes reach the Place ; yet fill I must repeat my Doubts-that Devil Phocyas Will know it foon-I met him near the Gate, My Nature fickens at him, and forebodes I know not what of Ill.

Cal. No more: away With thy cold Fears-we'll march this very Inflant. And quickly make this thriftless Conquest good: The Sword too has been wrong'd, and thirsts for Blood.

Officer. Sir, I have mark'd

The Camp's Extent; 'tis stretch'd quite thro' the Val-

I think that more than half the City's here.

all,

Eum. The Prospect gives me much Relief, I'm pleas'd, My honest Countrymen, t' observe your Numbers; And yet it fills my Eyes with Tears-'Tis faid The mighty Perfian wept, when he furvey'd His numerous Army, but to think 'em mortal; Yet he then flourish'd in Prosperity. Alas! What's that?—Profestity? a Harlot That fmiles but to betray! O flining Ruin! Thou Nurse of Passions, and thou Bane of Virtue! O felf destroying Monster! that art blind, Yer putt'it out Reason's Eyes, that flill shou'd guide thee, Then plungest down some Precipice unseen, And art no more !- Hear me, all gracious Heav'n! Let me wear out my small Remains of Life Obscure, content with humble Poverty, Or in Affliction's hard but wholesome School, If it must be-I'll learn to know myself, And that's more worth than Empire. But, O Heav'n, Carfe me no more with proud Profrerity! It has undone me !- Herbis; where, my Friend, Hall thou been this long Hour?

Enter Herbis.

Herb. On yonder Summit, To take a farewel Prospect of Damascus.

Eum. And is it worth a Look? Herb. No- I've forgot it.

All our Possessions are a Grasp of Air;

We're cheated whilst we think we hold them fast, And when they're gone, we know that they were no-

But I've a deeper Wound.

Eum. Poor good old Man!

'Tis true;—thy Son—there thou'rt indeed unhappy.

Enter Artamon.

What, Artamon? - art thou here too?

Art. Yes, Sir.

I never boatted much of my Religion, Yet I've some Honour, and a Soldier's Pride; I like not these new Lords.

Eum. Thou'rt brave and honest. Nay, we'll not yet despair. A Time may come When from these brute Barbarians we may wrest Once more our pleafant Seats. - Alas! how fcon The Flatterer Hope is ready with his Song To charm us to Forgetfulness! ---- No more-Let that be left to Heav'n !- See, Herbis, tee, Methinks we've here a goodly City yet! Was it not thus our great Forefathers liv'd, In better Times?---in humble Fields and Tents, With all their Flocks and Herds, their moving Wealth! See too! where our own Pharphar winds his Stream Thro' the long Vale, as if to follow us, And kindly offers his cool wholfome Draughts To eafe us in our March! Why this is Plenty. Enter Eudocia.

Eum. My Daughter?—wherefore hast thou lest thy Tent?

What breaks fo foon thy Rest?

Eud. Reft is not there,

ce,

Or I have lought in vain, and cannot find it, Oh no—we're Wanderers, it is our Doom; There is no Rest for us.

Eum. Thou art not well.

Eud. I wou'd, if possible, avoid myself.

I'm better now near you.

Eum. Near me? ___alas!

Eud. O fay not fo.

You have lost nothing: No, you have preserv'd Immortal Wealth, your Faith inviolate
To Heav'n and to your Country. Have you not Refus'd to joyn with prosp'rous wicked Men,
And hold from them a false inglorious Greatness?
Ruin is yonder, in Damascus now
The Seat abhorr'd of cursed Infidels.
Infernal Error, like a Plague, has spread

Contagion

Contagion thro' its guilty Palaces, And we are fled from Death.

Eum. Heroick Maid!

Thy Words are Balfam to my Griefs. Eudocia, I never knew thee till this Day; I knew not How many Virtues I had wrong'd in thee.

Euch. If you talk thus, you have not yet forgiv'n me.

Euch. Forgiv'n thee?—why, for thee it is, thee only.

I think Heav'n yet may look with Pity on us;

Yes, we must all forgive each other now.

Poor Heavis too—we both have been to blame.

O Phocyas—but it cannot be recall'd.
Yet were he here, we'd ask him Pardon too.

My Child! I meant not to provoke thy Tears.

Eud. [Afide.] O why is he not here? Why do I fee

Thousands of happy Wretches, that but seem Undone, yet still are bless in Innocence, And why was he not one?

Enter an Officer.

Off. Where is Eumenes?

Fum. What means thy breathless Hafte?

1 Off. I fear there's Danger;
For as I kept my Watch, I spy'd afar
Thick Clouds of Dust, and on a nearer View
Perceiv'd a Body of Arabian Horse
Moving this Way. I saw them wind the Hill,
And then lost Sight of 'em.

Herb. I faw 'em too.

Where the Roads meet on t'other Side these Hills,
But took them for some Bands of Christian Arabs
Crossing the Country.——This Way did they move?

1 Off. With utmost Speed.

Eum. If they are Christian Arabs,
They come as Friends; if other, we're secure
By the late Terms. Retire a while, Eudocia, Till I return.
[Exit Eudocia.
I'll to the Guard myself.

I'll to the Guard myself. Soldier, lead on the Way. Enter another Officer.

2 Off. Arm, Arm! we're ruin'd! The Foe is in the Camp.

Eum. So foon?

2 Off. They've quitted

Their Horses, and with Sword in Hand have forc'd Our Guard; they say they come for Plunder.

Eum. Villains!

Sure Caled knows not of this Treachery.

Come on --- we can fight still. We'll make 'em know What 'tis to urge the Wretched to Despair. [Exeunt.

[A Noise of Fighting is heard for some Time.

Enter Daran, with a Party of Saracen Soldiers.

Dar. Let the Fools fight at Distance. Here's the Harvest:

Reap, reap, my Countrymen !- Ay, there-first clear

Those further Tents-

[Exeunt Soldiers bearing off Baggage, &c.

Looking between the Tents.] What's here, a Woman?

She feems, and well attir'd-It shall be so,

I'll strip her first, and then-

[Exit, and returns with Eudocia.

Eud. [firuggling.] Mercy! O spare me!

Help, fave me!—What, no Help?—Barbarian! Mon-

Heav'n hear my Cries.

Dar. Woman, thy Cries are vain.

No Help is near.

Enter Phocyas.

Pho. Villain, thou ly'ft! take that

To loose thy Hold - [Pushing at bim with his Spear.

Dar. What, thou? my evil Spirit!

Is't thou that haunt'ft me ftill ?-but, thus I thank thee.

[Offering to firike with his Scimitar.

It will not be—Lightning for ever blaft
This Coward Arm that fails me!-O vile Syrian, (Falls.
I'm kill'd——O Curse—— (Dies.

Eud. Phocyas!——O Aftonishment!
Then is it thus that Heav'n has heard my Pray'rs?

I tremble still——and scarce have Power to ask thee.
How thou art here? or whence this sudden Outrage?

Pho. [walking aside.] The Blood ebbs back that fill'd

my Heart, and now

Again her parting Farewel awes my Soul, As if 'twere Fate, and not to be revok'd. Will she not now upbraid me, see thy Friends! Are these, are these the Villains thou hast trusted?

Eud. What means this murmor'd Sorrow to thyfelf?

Is it in vain that thou hast rescu'd me

From favage Hands?——Say, what's th' approaching Danger?

Pho. Sure every Angel watches o'er thy Safety? Thou feest 'tis Death i' approach thee without Awe, And Barbarism itself cannot profane thee.

Eud. Thou doft not answer, whence are these Alarms?

Pho. Some Stores remov'd, and not allow'd by 'Treaty',

Have drawn the Saracens to make a Search.

Perhaps 'twill quickly be agreed —— but Oh! Thou know'th, Eudocia, I'm a banish'd Man, And 'tis a Crime I'm here once more before thee, Elfe, might I speak, 'twere better for the present

If thou wou'dit leave this Place.

Eud. No——l've a Father,

(And shall I leave him?) whom we both have wrong'd,
Or he had not been thus driv'n out, expos'd
The humble Tenant of this shelt'ring Vale
For one poor Night's Repose.——And yet, alas!
For this last Act how wou'd I thank thee, Phocyas?—
I've nothing now but Pray'rs and Tears to give,
Cold fruitless Thanks.—But 'tis some Comfort yet
That Fate allows this short Reprieve, that thus
We may behold each other, and once more
May mourn our Woes, e'er yet we part

Pho. For ever!——

'Tis then refolv'd it was thy cruel Sentence, And I am here to execute that Doom.

Eud. What dost thou mean?

Pho. [kneeling.] Thus, at thy Feet-

Pho. Never—No, here l'Illay my Burden down; I've try'd its Weight, nor can support it longer. Take thy last Look; if yet thy Eyes can bear To look upon a Wretch accurst, cast off By Heav'n and thee———A little longer yet And I am mingled with my Kindred Dust, By thee forgotten and the World——

Eud. Forbear!

O cruel Man! Why wilt thou rack me thus?
Didft thou not mark, thou didft, when last we parted,
The Pangs, the Strugglings of my suffering Soul?
That nothing but the Hand of Heav'n wielf
Cou'd e'er divide me from thee?——Dost thou now
Reproach me thus? Or canst thou have a Thought
That I can e'er forget thee?

Pho. (rifing.) Have a Care!
I'll not be tortur'd more with thy falle Pity.
No, I renounce it. See, I am prepar'd.

(Sheaving a Dagger.

Thy Cruelty is Mercy now—Farewel.

And Death is now but a Release from Torment.

Eud. Hold - Stay thee yet! O Madness of De-

And wou'dst thou die? Think, e'er thou leap the Gulph,

When thou hast trod that dark, that unknown Way, Canst thou return?—What, if the Change prove worse,

O think, if then-

Pho. No— Thought's my deadlieft Foe.
'Tis ling'ring Racks and flow confuming Fires,
And therefore to the Grave I'd fly to flun it.

Eud. O fatal Error! — Like a reftless Ghost, It will pursue, and haunt thee still, ev'n there, Perhaps in Forms more frightful. Death's a Name By which poor guessing Mortals are deceived, 'Tis no where to be found. Thou sty'st in vain From Life, to meet again with that thou sty'st.

How

How wilt thou curse thy Rashness then? How start, And shudder, and shrink back? Yet how avoid To put on thy new Being?

Pho. So--I thank thee!

For now I'm quite undone———I gave up all
For thee before, but this; this Bosom Friend,
My last Reserve.—There — (Throws away the Dagger.
Tell me now, Eudocia,
Cut off from Hope, deny'd the Food of Life.

Cut off from Hope, deny'd the Food of Life, And yet forbid to die, what am I now?

Or what will Fate do with me?

Fud. Oh ____ (Turns away weeping.

Pho. Thou weep'ft!

Canst thou shed Tears, and yet not melt to Mercy? O say, e'er yet returning Madness seize me, Is there in all Futurity no Prospect, No distant Comfort? Not a glimmering Light To guide me thro' this Maze? Or must I now Sit down in Darkness, and despair for ever?

(Here they both continue filent for some Time.

Pho. Still art thou filent?—Speak, disclose my Doom,
That's now suspended in this awful Moment!
O speak——For now my Passions wait thy Voice;
My beating Heart grows calm, my Blood stands still,
Scarcely I live, or only live to hear thee.

Eud. If yet—but can it be?—I fear—O Phocyas,

Let me be silent still!

Pho. Hear then this last

This only Pray'r!——Heav'n will confent to this. Let me but follow thee, where'er thou goest, But see thee, hear thy Voice; be thou my Angel, To guide and govern my returning Steps, 'Till long Contrition and unweary'd Duty Shall expiate my Guilt. Then say, Eudocia, If, like a Soul anneal'd in purging Fires, After whole Years thou seest me white again, When thou, even thou shalt think——

Eud. No more—This shakes My firmest Thoughts, and if——

(Here a Cry is beard of Persons slaughter'd in the Camp.

-What

-What Shrieks of Death! I fear the treacherous Foe-again! and louder! Then they've begun a fatal Harvest !- Haste, Prevent - O wou'dst thou see me more with Comfort, Fly, fave 'em, fave the threaten'd Lives of Christians, My Father and his Friends! - I dare not stay -Heav'n be my Guide to shun this gathering Ruin. (Ex. Eudocia.

Manet Phocyas. Enter Caled.

Cal. (entering.) So--Slaughter do thy Work! (Looking on bis Hands. - These Hands look well. The jovial Hunter, e'er he quit the Field, First signs him in the Stag's warm vital Stream With Stains like thefe, to shew 'twas gallant Sport. Phocyas! Thou'rt met? -- But whether thou art here (Comes forward.

A Friend or Foe I know not; if a Friend, Which is Eumenes' Tent?

Pho. Hold---pass no further.

Cal. Say'st thou, not pass?

Pho. No--On thy Life no further.

Cal. What! Doft thou frown too? --- fure, thou know'ft me not!

Pho. Not know thee? - Yes, too well I know thee

O murd'rous Fiend! why all this Waste of Blood? Didft thou not promife-

Cal. Promife? _____ Infolence!
'Tis well, 'tis well ____ For now I know thee too. Perfidious Mungril Slave! Thou double Traitor! False to thy first and to thy latter Vows!

Pho. That's well-Go on-I fwear I thank thee, Speak it again, and firike it thro' my Ear! A Villain! - Yes, thou mad'ft me so, thou Devil! And mind it me now what to demand from thee. Give, give me back my former felf, my Honour, My Country's fair Esteem, my Friends, my All-Thou canst not-O thou Robber! -- Give me then Revenge, or Death !-- The last I well deferve, That

Pho. Go thou first thyfelf.

Cal. (falling.) O Dog! Thou gnaw'st my Heart!
---False Mabomet!

Is this, is this then my Reward for O (Dies.

Several Parties of Christians and Saracens pass over the farther Part of the Stage fighting. The former are beaten. At last Eumenes rallies them, and makes a Stand. Then enter Abudah attended. Abu. Forbear, forbear, and sheath the bloody Sword!

Eum. Abudah! Is this well?
Abu. No ____ I must own

You've Caufe——O Muffulmen, look here, behold Where like a broken Spear your Arm of War Is thrown to Earth!

Eum. Ha! Caled ?

Abu. Dumb and breathless.
Then thus has Heav'n chastis'd us in thy Fall,

And thee for violated Faith: farewel,

Thou great but cruel Man!

Eum. His Thirst of Blood In his own Blood is quench'd.

Abu. Bear hence his Clay
Back to Damascus. Cast a Mantle first
O'er this sad Sight; so shou'd we hide his Faults.—
Now hear, ye Servants of the Prophet, hear!
A greater Death than this demands your Tears,
For know, your Lord the Caliph is no more!
Good Abubeker has breath'd out his Spirit
To him that gave it. Yet your Caliph lives,
Lives now in Omar. See, behold his Signet,

Appointing me, fuch is his Will, to lead His faithful Armies warring here in Syria. Alas! --- Foreknowledge fure of this Event Guided his Choice !--- obey me then your Chief. For you, O Christians! know, with Speed I came, On the first Notice of this foul Delign. Or to prevent it, or repair your Wrongs. Your Goods shall be untouch'd, your Persons safe, Nor shall our Troops henceforth, on Pain of Death, Molest your March .- If more you ask, 'tis granted. Eum. Still just and brave! Thy Virtues wou'd adorn A purer Faith! Thou better than thy Sect, That dar'ft decline from that to Acts of Mercy! Pardon, Abudab, if thy honest Heart Makes us ev'n wish thee ours. Abu. (Afide.) O Power Supreme, That mad'ft my Heart, and know'ft its inmost Frame! If yet I err, O lead me into Truth, Or pardon unknown Error!--Now, Eumenes. Friends as we may be, let us part in Peace. (Exeunt feverally. Enter Eudocia and Artamon. Eud. Alas! but is my Father fafe? Art. Heav'n knows. I left him just preparing to engage; When doubtful of th' Event he bade me hafte To warn his dearest Daughter of the Danger, And aid your speedy Flight. Eud. My Flight? But whither? O no-if he is loft-Art. I hope, not fo. The Noise is ceas'd. Perhaps they're beaten off. We foon shall know; ---- here's one that can inform us. Enter firft Officer,

And has renew'd the Terms. Caled is kill'd-

Soldier, thy Looks speak well. What fays thy Tongue? 1 Off. The Foe's withdrawn; Abudub has been here.

Eud. Where is Eumenes?

1 Off. I left him well: By his Command I came

To fearch you out, and let you know this News. I've more, but that

Art. Is bad, perhaps; fo fays

This sudden Pause. Well, be it so; let's know it, 'Tis but Life's chequer'd Lot.

1 Off. Eumenes mourns

A Friend's unhappy Fall; Herbis is slain;
A settled Gloom seem'd to hang heavy on him,
Th' Effect of Grief, 'tis thought, for his lost Son.
When on the first Attack, like one that sought
The welcome Means of Death, with desperate Valour
He press'd the Foe, and met the Fate he wish'd.

Art. See where Eumenes comes! --- What's this?

To lead some wounded Friend ---- Alas! 'tis---- (They withdraw to one Side of the Stage.

Enter Eumenes leading in Phocyas with an Arrow in bis Breast.

Eum. Give me thy Wound! O I cou'd bear it for thee.
This Goodness melts my Heart. What, in a Moment
Forgetting all thy Wrongs, in kind Embraces T' exchange Forgiveness thus!

Pho. Moments are few

And must not now be wasted. O Eumenes, Lend me thy helping Hand a little farther;

O where, where is the? (They advance.

Eum. Look, look here, Eudocia!

Behold a Sight that calls for all our Tears.

Eud. Phocyas, and wounded!—O what cruel Hand—Pho. No, 'twas a kind one—Spare thy Tears, Eudocia!

For mine are Tears of Joy-

Eud. Is't possible?

Pho. 'Tis done—the Pow'r supreme have heard my Pray'r.

And prosper'd me with some fair Deeds this Day.

I've fought once more, and for my Friends, my Coun-

By me the treacherous Chiefs are flain; awhile I stopp'd the Foe, 'till, warn'd by me before Of this their sudden March, Abudab came, But first this Random Shast had reach'd my Breast. Life's mingled Scene is o'er—'tis thus that Heav'n At once chastises and, I hope, accepts me; And now I wake as from the Sleep of Death.

Eud. What shall I say to thee, to give thee Comfort?

Pho. Say only thou forgiv'st me.—O Eudocia!

No longer now my dazzled Eyes behold thee

Thro' Passion's Miss; my Soul now gazes on thee,

And sees thee lovelier in unsading Charms,

Bright as the shining Angel Host that stood!

Whilst I—but there, it smarts—

Eud. Look down, look down,

Ye pitying Pow'rs! and heal his pious Sorrow!

Eum. 'Tis not too late, we hope, to give thee help.

See! yonder is my Tent. We'll lead thee thither.

Come, enter there, and let thy Wound be dres'd.

Perhaps it is not mortal.

Pho. No? not mortal?

in

No Flattery now. By all my Hopes hereafter, For the World's Empire I'd not lose this Death! Alas! I but keep in my fleeting Breath A few short Moments, till I have conjur'd you That to the World you witness my Remorse For my past Errors, and defend my Fame. For know—foon as this pointed Steel's drawn out Life follows thro' the Wound.

Eud. What dost thou say?
O touch not yet the broken Springs of Life!
A thousand tender Thoughts rise in my Soul.
How shall I give them Words? O, till this Hour I scarce have tasted Woe!——this is indeed.
To part——but Oh——

Pho. No more——Death now is painful!
But fay, my Friends, whilft I have Breath to ask,
(For still methinks all your Concerns are mine)
Whither have you design'd to bend your Journey?

From Constantinately is my left Retreat.

Eum. Constantinople is my last Retreat, If Heav'n indulge my Wish; there I've resolv'd

To wear out the dark Winter of my Life,
An old Man's Stock of Days, I hope not many.

Eud. There will I dedicate myself to Heav'n.
O Phocyas, for thy Sake, no Rival else
Shall e'er possess my Heart. My Father too
Consents to this my Vow. My vital Flame
There, like a Taper on the holy Altar,
Shall waste away; till Heav'n relenting hear
Incessant Pray'rs for thee and for myself,
And wing my Soul to meet with thine in Blifs.
For in that Thought I find a sudden Hope,
As if inspir'd, springs in my Breast, and tells me
That thy repenting Frailty is forgiven,
And we shall meet again, to part no more.

Pho (Plucking out the Arrow.) Then all is done—
'twas the last Pang—at length

I've given up thee, and the World now is—nothing.

Eum. Alas! he falls. Help, Artamon, support him.

Look, how he bleeds! Let's lay him gently down:

Night gathers fast upon him—So—look up,

Or speak, if thou hast Life—Nay then—my Daugh-

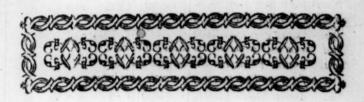

She faints-help there, and bear her to her Tent.
(Eudocia is carry'd off.

Art. (Weeping, afide.) I thank ye, Eyes! This is but decent Tribute.

My Heart was full before. Eum. O Phocyas, Phocyas!

Alas! he hears not now, nor fees my Sorrows!
Yet will I mourn for thee, thou gallant Youth!
As for a Son—fo let me call thee now!
A much-wrong'd Friend! and an unhappy Hero!
A fruitless Zeal, yet all I now can shew!
Tears vainly flow for Errors learn'd too late,
When timely Caution shou'd prevent our Fate.

[Exeunt omnes.

EPILOGUE

Spoken by Mr. WILKS.

WELL, Sirs; you've feen, bis Passion to approve, A desperate Lower give up all for Love, All but bis Faith - Methinks now I can fpy, Among you airy Sparks, some who wou'd cry, Phoo, Pox-for that-what need of Juch a Pother? For one Faith left, be wou'd bave got another. True: 'troas your very Cafe. Just what you fay Our Rebel Fools were ripe for, t'other Day; Tho' disappointed now, they're wifer grown, And, with much Grief-are fored to keep their own. Thefe generous Madmen gratis fought their Ruin, And fet no Price, not they ! on their Undoing. For Gain, indeed, we've others wou'd not dally, Or with Rale Principles Stand Shilli-Shall 1-You'll find all their Religion in Change-Alley. There all pursue, by better Means or worse, Iago's Rule, Put Money in thy Purse, For the' you differ fill in Speculation, For why-each Head is wifer than the Nation, Tho' Points of Faith for ever will divide you, And bravely you declare-none e'er shall ride you: In Practice all agree, and every Man Devoutly strives to get what Wealth he can: All Parties at this golden Altar bow, Gain, pow'rful Gain's the new Religion now.

EPILOGUE.

But leave we this—Since in this Circle smile
So many shining Beauties of our lste,
Who to more generous Ends direct their Aim,
And shew us Virtue in its fairest Frame;
To these with Pride the Author bid me say,
'Twas for your Sex he chiesty wrote this Play;
And if in one bright Character you find
Superior Honour, and a noble Mind,
Know from the Life Eudocia's Charms he drew,
And hopes the Piece shall live, that copies you.
Sure of Success, he cannot miss his End,
If ev'ry British Heroine prove his Friend.
